

Editorial: Letting nature take back control

Appendix

---

Rob Fuller and Guy Freeman

For the full article, see British Wildlife Volume 32, Number 4, February 2021, 235–236.

---

The following list includes past British Wildlife articles that have relevance to rewilding approaches for conservation. We have attempted to group these broadly by subject matter, ranging from specific interventions to wider themes within conservation, but this is of course subjective; there will be plenty of points of overlap between the different categories.

---

Case studies and landscape-scale conservation

Bowley, A. 2007. The Great Fen – a waterland for the future. British Wildlife 18: 415–423.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-18-number-6-page-415-423

Bowley, A. 2013. The Great Fen – the challenges of creating a wild landscape in lowland England. British Wildlife 25: 95–102.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-25-number-2-page-95-102

Browning, G., & Oakley, R. 2009. Wild Ennerdale. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 56–58.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Marren, P. 2016. The great rewilding experiment at Knepp Castle. British Wildlife 27: 333–339.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-27-number-5-page-333-339

Peterken, G., & Mountford, E. 1995. Lady Park Wood Reserve – the first half century. British Wildlife 6: 205–213.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-6-number-4-page-205-213

Peterken, G., & Mountford, E. 2005. Natural woodland reserves – 60 years of trying at Lady Park Wood. British Wildlife 17: 7–16.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-17-number-1-page-7-16

Robertson, J. 2018. Beneath the trees – a case study of wild woods and tame fields. British Wildlife 30: 11–17.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-30-number-1-page-11-17

Grazing issues and wood pasture

Alexander, K. 1999. The invertebrates of Britain's wood pastures. British Wildlife 11: 108–117.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-11-number-2-page-108-117

Baker, S., Greig, C., Macgregor, H., & Swan, A. 1998. Exmoor ponies – Britain's prehistoric wild horses? British Wildlife 9: 304–313.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-9-number-5-page-304-313

Bignal, E., & McCracken, D. 2009. Herbivores in space: extensive grazing in Europe. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 44–49.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Bullock, D. 1995. The feral goat – conservation and management. British Wildlife 6: 152–159.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-6-number-3-page-152-159

Chatters, C., & Sanderson, N. (1995). Grazing lowland pasture woods. British Wildlife 6: 78–88.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-6-number-2-page-78-88

Green, T. 2010. The importance of open-grown trees: from acorn to ancient. British Wildlife 21: 334–338.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-21-number-5-page-334-338

Hodder, K. H., & Bullock, J. M. 2009. Really wild? Naturalistic grazing in modern landscapes. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 37–43.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Kampf, H. 2000. The role of large grazing animals in nature conservation – a Dutch perspective. British Wildlife 12: 37–46.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-12-number-1-page-37-46

King, M. 2017. The Knepp Vera conference: the case for creating new wood pastures. British Wildlife 29: 27–33.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-29-number-1-page-27-33

Oates, M., & Tolhurst, S. 2000. Grazing for nature conservation: rising to the challenge. British Wildlife 11: 348–353.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-11-number-5-page-348-353

Taylor, P. 2009. Re-wilding the grazers: obstacles to the 'wild' in wildlife management. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 50–55.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Tubbs, C.R. (1997) The ecology of pastoralism in the New Forest. British Wildlife 9:7–16.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-9-number-1-page-7-16

Historic perspectives and naturalistic grazing

Alexander, K., Allen, M., Butler, J., Green, T., & Woods, R. 2018. Britain's natural landscapes – promoting improved understanding of the nature of the post-glacial vegetation of lowland Britain. British Wildlife 29: 330–338.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-29-number-5-page-330-338

Bullock, D. 2009. What larger mammals did Britain have and what did they do? British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 16–20.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Fyfe, R. 2018. 'Natural' vegetation in Britain: the pollen-eye view. British Wildlife 29: 339–349.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-29-number-5-page-339-349

Hodder, K. H., Buckland, P. C., Kirby, K. J., & Bullock, J. M. 2009. Can the pre-Neolithic provide suitable models for re-wilding the landscape in Britain? British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 4–15.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Thomas, C. D. 2009. A speculative history of open-country species in Britain and northern Europe. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 21–25.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Vera, F. W. M. 2009. Large-scale nature development – the Oostvaardersplassen. British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 28–36.
www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Introductions and reintroductions

Carter, I. 2020. Comment: Reintroductions – are they always a good thing? British Wildlife 32: 43–48.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-32-number-1-page-43-48

Gaywood, M., Batty, D., & Galbraith, C. 2008. Reintroducing the beaver in Britain. British Wildlife 19: 381–391.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-19-number-6-page-381-391

Jones, S., Gow, D., Lloyd Jones, A., & Campbell-Palmer, R. 2013. The battle for British beavers 24: 381–392.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-25-number-1-page-381-392

Green, T. 2000. Copping like a beaver. British Wildlife 11: 239–241.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-11-number-4-page-239-241

Hetherington, D. 2008. The history of the Eurasian Lynx in Britain and the potential for its reintroduction. British Wildlife 20: 77–86.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-20-number-2-page-77-86

Marren, P. 2002. Introductions – are we conserving species at the expense of nature? British Wildlife 14: 77–82.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-14-number-2-page-77-82

Pearman, D., & Walker, K. 2004. Rare plant introductions in the UK: creative conservation or wildflower gardening? British Wildlife 15: 174–182.
www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-15-number-3-page-174-182

Wilson, K., Law, A., Gaywood, M., Ramsay, P., & Wilby, N. 2020. Beavers: the original engineers of Britain's fresh waters. British Wildlife 31: 403–411. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-31-number-6-page-403-411

Woodroffe, G. 2005. A trial reintroduction of the European beaver. British Wildlife 16: 381–384. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-16-number-6-page-381-384

Practice and policy

---

Casey, D., Fuller, R., Baker, J., Hawkins, J., & Roughton, J. 2020. Opportunities for wildlife through small-scale wilding in lowland farmed landscapes. British Wildlife 31: 179–187. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-31-number-3-page-179-187

Crowle, A. 2007. Letting our carbon go free. The sustainable management of carbon and blanket peat in the English uplands. British Wildlife 19: 28–34. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-19-number-1-page-28-34

Dolman, P., Williamson, T., Fuller, R., & Barnes, G. 2017. What does 'traditional' management really mean? British Wildlife 29: 113–119. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-29-number-2-page-113-119

Fuller, R. J., & Warren, M. S. 1995. Management for biodiversity in British woodlands – striking a balance. British Wildlife 7: 26–37. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-7-number-1-page-26-37

Hambler, C., & Speight, M. R. 1995. Biodiversity conservation in Britain: science replacing tradition. British Wildlife 6: 137–147. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-6-number-3-page-137-147

Hopkins, J. J. 1996. Scrub ecology and conservation. British Wildlife 8: 28–36. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-8-number-1-page-28-36

Hopkins, J. 2013. Nature conservation in the early 21st century: all change? British Wildlife 24: 183–189. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-24-number-3-page-183-189

Kirby, K. J. 2009. Policy in or for the wilderness? British Wildlife 20(5; special supplement): 59–62. www.britishwildlife.com/back-issues/british-wildlife-205sup-june-2009

Peterken, G. 2019. Defining 'natural woodland'. British Wildlife 30: 157–159. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-30-number-3-page-157-159

Tubbs, C. R. 1996. Comment: Wilderness or cultural landscapes: conflicting conservation philosophies? British Wildlife 7: 290–296. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-7-number-5-page-290-296

Tubbs, C. R. 1997. A vision for rural Europe. British Wildlife 9: 79–85. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-9-number-2-page-79-85

Whitbread, A., & Jenman, W. 1995. A natural method of conserving biodiversity in Britain. British Wildlife 7: 84–93. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-7-number-2-page-84-93

Tree planting

---

Merryweather, J. 2007. Comment: Planting trees or woodlands? An ecologist's perspective. British Wildlife 18: 250–258. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-18-number-4-page-250-258

Chatters, C. 2013. Is tree-planting good for wildlife? British Wildlife 24: 162–166. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-24-number-3-page-162-166

Farjon, A., & Hill, L. 2019. Natural woodland generation as an alternative to tree-planting. British Wildlife 30: 255–263. www.britishwildlife.com/article/volume-30-number-4-page-255-263